

SHOTS FIRED.

Shot While Sitting Back of Her Secaucus Road House.

DYING, NAMED AN ENEMY

Bullet Evidently Fired from a Swamp Near Her Home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Tierney, who was shot on Tuesday at the Troy House, on the county road in Secaucus, N. J., died last evening in St. Francis Hospital, Jersey City, and the police believe that she was murdered.

Her assailant is not known, but several persons are under suspicion. It was at first believed that the shooting was accidental, due to the careless handling of firearms by some unknown person on July 4.

Mrs. Tierney was the owner of the Troy House, a resort frequented by politicians, Hudson County office-holders and the officials of the different institutions in Snake Hill. The house is on a lonely part of the Hackensack meadows, about a quarter of a mile north of Snake Hill, and is a small house on the east, near a horse shed and stable.

Sitting Back of the House.
Mrs. Tierney was sitting in a chair at the rear of her house and facing it on Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. With her were her sister, Mrs. Anna Oberbeck, of No. 246 Broadway street, Jersey City; Mrs. Oberbeck's children, George and Anna, and her own children, Florence, seven years old; Charles, eight, and Grace, thirteen. Edward McGilly, the woman's husband, was inside the hotel, behind the bar.

Suddenly there came a startling report. It sounded directly in the rear of the house, and as if it had been made by a small cannon. Mrs. Tierney jumped up, placed her hand on her side and exclaimed: "I'm shot! Hurry for a doctor."

No one took the remark seriously, and she walked, unassisted, into the dining room. Then she fell on the floor and told her husband she had been shot. He ran for assistance to Snake Hill, and returned with Dr. Charles King, superintendent of the Insane Asylum.

A wound was found in the left side of the woman's back, where a bullet had entered, and lower down on the right side was a larger wound where the ball had passed out. Mrs. Tierney was removed to St. Francis Hospital in a ambulance, and at 9 o'clock Tuesday night, Dr. McGilly, assisted by eight of the best known surgeons in New Jersey, performed an operation. The intestines had been perforated in eight places by the bullet, and the case was pronounced hopeless.

Accused in Her Dying Statement.
County Physician Converse took the woman's dying declaration, and it is said, that she had been shot by a man named "Tommy," who she had been seeing for some time. She said she had been shot by a man named "Tommy," who she had been seeing for some time.

Had Quarrels With Three Men.
Mrs. Tierney and John Kirkpatrick, who owns the adjoining swamp land, from which the shooting evidently was done, have had a standing quarrel since Mrs. Tierney bought the land, and she has been in the background of public notice. Her last claim to general interest was caused by her visit to Holland during the coronation of her royal cousin, Queen Wilhelmina.

BISHOP NEWMAN DIES: HIS WIDOW FAILING.

The Latter So Ill That She May Die Any Moment.

THE END AT SARATOGA.

Death Caused by Pneumonia After a Prolonged Illness.

Saratoga, N. Y., July 5.—Bishop John P. Newman, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, an intimate friend and for several years the pastor of the late President Grant, died here at 2:30 p. m. to-day. Bishop Newman had been failing health for years, but it was only a week ago that his condition really alarmed his friends.

Since Monday he has been sinking rapidly and this morning his physicians announced that in all probability he would not survive the day. The immediate cause of death was pneumonia. At 2 o'clock this afternoon relatives and intimate friends were summoned to the bedside.

Mrs. Newman is almost crushed by her bereavement. Inasmuch as she is in comparatively feeble health it is feared that she will not long survive her husband.

Telegrams and cablegrams are being received from all quarters to-night expressing sympathy and condolence. A dispatch from Bishop Randolph S. Foster, at Roxbury, Mass., announces that he will reach Saratoga tomorrow morning and complete arrangements for the funeral will be made after his arrival.

LAVINIA I. FINDS A QUEEN MAY BE SUED.
Judgment Against Royal He Employs Sleuths Who Holland Dame for Lawyer's Fees.

That royalty can sue and be sued—at least in America—was proved yesterday when a judgment was filed against Lavinia H. Van Westervelt Dempsey, Queen of the Holland Dames of the Netherlands.

Besides the Queen her brothers, Guy C. Dempsey and John A. Dempsey, are defendants on the judgment which was obtained by former Surrogate John H. V. Arnold in the sum of $3,127.44.

Judge Arnold, the plaintiff, set forth that before he became Surrogate, he rendered services to them in a proceeding in the Surrogate Court regarding the will of Jane A. Melville, and also in advising for the probate of the will of Jane Dempsey, and some other matters.

After the business was straightened out there grew up in the minds of the Queen and her brothers on one hand, and Counsel Arnold, on the other, a wide difference of opinion regarding the value of the lawyer's services.

He thought that his work was worth $2,500, and put in a bill for this amount. The Queen and her brothers refused to pay Mr. Arnold $500 and refused to pay the balance of $2,000. On July 1, 1898, and $2,000 for disbursements.

MOSS' DETECTIVES ARE UNLICENSED.
He Employs Sleuths Who Holland Dame for Lawyer's Fees.

In preference to detectives duly licensed by the State and recognized as such by the municipal police it is charged that Frank Moss, who is steering the course of the Mazer ship investigator, has employed unlicensed detectives to do the spying on city officials and make investigations as to the location of pool room and gambling houses.

There is in existence a law which prohibits the employment of men as detectives who are not licensed. This law was made to prevent mercenary persons in the guise of detectives, or claiming to be such, from using their self-assured authority for purposes of blackmail or other criminal practices.

This law applies as well to private detective agencies, and it is alleged means a heavy fine and imprisonment.

Agencies are required, under the law, to file a bond of $2,000 with the State Comptroller before they can do business. A few days ago the State Comptroller sent State Inspector Daniel Wilson to the city to investigate certain detective agencies and detectives so called, to inquire into the standing and ascertain if they were duly licensed.

Monday evidence was furnished State Inspector Wilson to the effect that the men employed by Frank Moss were unlicensed, and that not a few of them had been furnished by an agency in this city which had no license.

DRUNKEN NEGROES ENGAGE IN THREE FATAL MIDNIGHT BRAWLS.
Roseville Saloonkeeper Shots Five of a Mob of Negroes Who Tried to Capture His Place.

They were a thirsty lot of negroes who worked yesterday in the brickyards at Roseville, near Haverstraw, languishing with the aftermath of holiday libations. Two of them begged a saloonkeeper named John O'Shea to trust them for the price of a pint of beer, but he laughed them to scorn.

"All right," they said. "When we come back we'll get even."

O'Shea closed his saloon, knowing the character of his neighbors and remembering the raiding of three Roseville saloons a couple of years ago, when two men were shot.

NEGRO SHOTS FORMER FIRE CHIEF MULCAHEY, OF YONKERS, AND NARROWLY ESCAPES BEING LYNCHED.
Leader of a Gang of Negro Roughs Shot and Killed by a Man He Attacked at Princeton Basin.

SAUEL CRUSE, the negro leader of a gang of roughs at Princeton, N. J., and long feared by the residents, was shot and instantly killed at 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning by a young man named Larkins.

The murder was the wind-up of a drunken frolic in celebration of the Fourth at Princeton Basin.

Cruse was forty years old and a man of prodigious strength. He was feared by all the members of his gang. He had been drinking steadily from the morning of the Fourth until past midnight.

At that hour he and the members of his gang had gathered at a grocery at Princeton Basin.

They started to leave the place at 1:30 a. m. and Cruse, crazed by drink, began to lay about him with a club. Every one sprang out of the way but Larkins, and he was promptly felled by a blow of the club. When Larkins staggered to his feet Cruse again advanced on him.

Some one had placed a shotgun in Larkins' hands, and he took careful aim and fired. The whole charge of buckshot entered the giant black's right side. He reeled and fell dead.

Larkins, who is twenty-one years old and an employee of the Princeton Water Company, surrendered himself to the police. He was committed "without bail to await the result of the inquest, which it is believed will exonerate him.

MAJOR SITS ON COLE SERVICE LAW.

State Board on Monday Will Decide Whether It Will Insist or Not.

POWER OF COERCION.

Framers of the Roosevelt Measure Evidently Anticipated Just This Emergency.

Tammany Hall's condemnation of the Roosevelt Civil Service law as "a fraud, sham and great American fake" at the Fourth of July celebration was followed yesterday by Mayor Van Wyck's disapproval of the rules framed by the Roosevelt State Commission to govern the New York City Commission. The Mayor's veto, coupled with the denunciatory speeches of Congressman Cummings and Senator Grady at the Wigwam, is only part of a plan to make a Democratic campaign issue this Fall of the "great Republican humbug," as Senator Plunkitt stigmatized it yesterday.

The Mayor had this message sent to the State Civil Service Board:

"I enclose the rules, as amended in accordance with the resolutions of the State Civil Service Commission. The Mayor of the city of New York is not willing to approve some of the amendments made by the State Commission."

This was signed by Secretary Lee Phillips, of the local board, upon instruction from the Mayor. The State Board may or may not ask the Mayor to point out more specific objections. The Platt Legislature contrived the new Civil Service law, so that should the Mayor disapprove the State Board can frame its own rules and force the local board to accept and enforce them.

The board meets in Albany next Monday. Then will be decided whether the Mayor shall be asked to point out the grounds of his disapproval at length or whether it will seek to force upon the local commission the rules of which he disapproves.

A WHOLESALE HEGIRA FROM A TAMMANY CLUB.
Fifty Carondelet Members Resign, and Will Form a Club Pledged to Charles Wolfe.

Fifty members of the Carondelet Club, of the Thirty-first Assembly District, resigned yesterday in compliance with directions determined upon at the recent conference between Dock Commissioner Peter P. Meyer, Charles Wolfe and other followers of Tammany's big chief.

These directions were issued because Isaac A. Hopper, Wolfe's rival for leadership in the Thirty-first District, had captured the club and had been accused of a "take-over" of the club, and one of the members, said yesterday that a new organization will be formed with its support pledged to Wolfe.

SAYS BIBLE WILL SOON BE NOVELTY.
Old Book, Mr. Carson Fears, Is Being Crowded Out of Churches.

Persons with broken hearts and shattered lives are special objects of attention at the "Old Testaments" gospel tent last night.

"From appeals and messages which have been sent to me," said Evangelist Pratt, "I know that there are in this tent every night scores of people with broken lives. It is to you that we want to help to-night."

Hundreds asked for prayer. A novel invitation by Evangelist Pratt was to all mothers and fathers who were greatly concerned over children still unsaved. All over the tent men and women arose. Some were aged and tottering. A similar invitation was to brothers and sisters.

The oral testimonies of the service were restricted to those whose lives had been torn and shattered, but who had been reclaimed by divine grace. A woman, young but evidently burdened with many cares, was among the first to respond. She said: "I was brought up in a home where there was no Bible. My parents were not Christians. My life was very dark, and I was a sinner. But I thank God that Christ came into my life and saved me."

More evidence was presented by a middle-aged man. "For nineteen years," said he, "I was away from home and friends. But one night I drifted into a gospel meeting and was saved. Since then I have worked among sinners, trying to bring them to Jesus. I have preached to the prisoners in Sing Sing and the toughs of the Bowery. I am convinced that Jesus Christ is able to make sinners good men and true."

Rev. J. F. Carson, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, of Brooklyn, preached the sermon last night. Seated upon the platform were Dr. John Quincy Adams Henry, of San Francisco, and Mr. Radcliffe, of the Metropolitan Temple. Sam Small, the evangelist, was in the audience.

The subject of the sermon was "The Divine Potter." The preacher's eloquence stayed the throng. He said in part: "In the work of this gospel tent I have heard a message from heaven. That message is that the gospel of Jesus Christ has still an attraction for men in the closing days of the nineteenth century. It is no little thing to contemplate that in busy New York, in a hot summer night, hundreds will come out for no other purpose than to hear the simple old truth proclaimed."

"People say they want novelties in the churches. I believe the time will come, if this thing keeps on, that the only novelty will be the old gospel of Jesus Christ in the plain, unaffected religion which Christ came into the world to teach."

"Human lives are, like clay, valueless until shaped and molded by the Divine Potter. Human spirits are also like candles to which light has not yet been applied until they are touched by the illuminating fire of the Divine Spirit."

William Phillips Hall, the business man evangelist, will preach at the tent to-night. New Gospel Tent Opened "For the Poor" in the Vicinity of Chatham Square.

A new gospel tent sprang into existence last night. It is a result of the remarkable success of the "Old Testaments" tent. This tent is pitched on the courtyard adjoining the Mariners' Temple, in Chatham square.

Rev. George Coker, pastor of the Mariners' Temple, is in charge and has the cooperation of a number of prominent workers. He said at the initial meeting last night: "Our purpose is to provide a cool and attractive place in the evenings for the poor of Chatham square. Uptown they have an elaborate tent for the wealthier class, but this is for the poor and stranded."

The services last night were conducted by members of the Salvation Army.

The Young Man Receives the Fatal Bullet in His Breast.

Charlotte, N. C., July 5.—News of a tragedy just over the South Carolina line reached here to-day. J. F. Sloan, a prominent citizen of York County, had forbidden the house to Columbus Watson, a suitor for the hand of his daughter. The girl, it seems, was fond of Watson and numerous meetings took place after her father had expressed his displeasure.

Watson went to visit the house after the fashion of Romeo. Sloan discovered the fact of his visits, and when he called again was concealed near a window. Watson was trapped on the window, and as he hid the old man fired.

The bullet crashed through the window and took effect in the young man's breast. It is said that Watson's wound is fatal, as the physician cannot locate the bullet.
